HISTORIC PHOTOGRAPH

The third in a series of our complimentary momentos

The photograph of Dr. A. T. Still with the first class of osteopathy, 1892-93, is a part of the collection of the Still National Osteopathic Museum. Those who studied in this class included Dr. A. T. Still's brother Edward Still, and children, Fred, Charles, Harry M., Herman T., and Blanch Still Laughlin. Other members of the class included Arthur G. Hildreth and William Smith, M.D., the school's first anatomy instructor as well as the first graduate of the ASO.

We Give Thanks. . .

for all the blessings bestowed upon us. The Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine would like to extend our sincere thanks for your support and friendship to the founding college of the osteopathic profession.

May your thanksgiving be bountiful and the coming year be full of many blessings.

Sincerely,

Randy L. Rogers Larry C. Evans
