Why does wellness in the workplace matter?

Our coworkers, break rooms and commuting routines all influence our healthy behaviors!

The average adult spends 8.8 hours per day on work related activities\(^1\)

Or

About 60% of the time you are awake!\(^2\)

American’s eat about 1/3\(^{rd}\) of their food outside of the home & spend half of their food budget on take-out & convenience food\(^3\)

What healthy default will you try at work today?

Forming healthy habits is easier with support, ask your coworkers if they are willing to join!

Plan Ahead at Home

- Keep gym bag or sneakers in the car as a visual motivator
- Invest in reusable containers and bags to make packing lunch easier
- Keep extra snacks or gum in the car to avoid stopping on the way home

Try...

Popcorn, mixed nuts & dark chocolate or peanut butter & fresh fruit!

Food & Our Environment

Our everyday environment promotes weight gain, making it hard to form a healthy lifestyle.²

2/3rds of Americans are overweight or obese⁴

Healthy Defaults:
Change your environment, change your behavior
Simple cues to make the healthy choice, the easy choice!

Weight loss is much more than counting calories and working out

Much of our behavior is cued by our environment, we are often unaware of our own decisions.

Unhealthy food is...
- Accessible
- Appetizing
- Inexpensive
- Unavoidable

We are tempted by over 170,000 fast food restaurants and 3 million soda vending machines around us!³

Workplace Wellness Tips

Encouraging a healthy workplace improves productivity, attendance and mood of employees!⁵

Healthy defaults at work...

- Ask for smart snacking options in vending machines
- Keep a water bottle in your work station
- Use smaller plates and bowls in break room
- Keep locker with healthy snacks to satisfy cravings
- Many whole food, frozen meal options are available, keep a few in the freezer as a backup
- Eat lunch outside or talk to a coworker to slow down & enjoy meal times
- Limit distractions while eating like phones and TV
